

Bicycle-basher suspect held in Iowa

Twenty – three women in Sacramento, California reported being punched by a passing bicyclist between March 2002 and February 2003. Most of these women were walking in downtown and midtown when they were struck by this man.

One witness described him as having really bad “Greg Brady” hair (For those of you familiar with the old television series “The Brady Bunch”, you understand how full his head of hair was)

The number of cases continued to increase until a sketch of this curly-haired bicyclist was released to the public on February 27th, 2003. The assaults stopped abruptly after the composite was publicized. There was evidence that he had shaved off all his hair and fled the state, but his change in appearance did not help him evade the police.

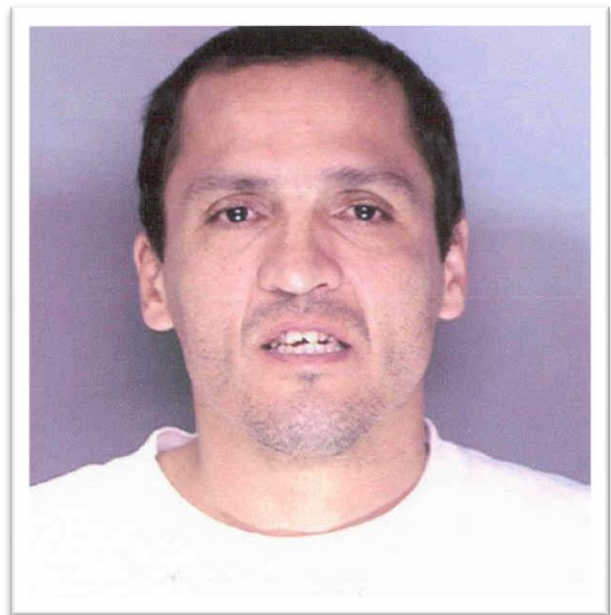

Composite Sketch

He was apprehended shortly thereafter in Iowa.

Old mug shot prior to arrest

Mug shot taken after his capture and arrest